WHAT WERE THE FUND COSTS FOR THE PAST YEAR? (based on a hypothetical $10,000 investment)

Class Name	Costs of a $10,000 investment	Costs paid as a percentage of a $10,000 investment
Investor Class	$109	0.97%

HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM LAST YEAR AND WHAT AFFECTED ITS PERFORMANCE?

Over the past 12 months ending September 30, 2024, the FMI Common Stock Fund Investor Class gained 24.71%, compared with 26.76% for the Russell 2000® Index and 25.88% for the Russell 2000® Value Index. The Fund invests in quality businesses that have strong balance sheets and trade at discount valuations. We strive to generate strong absolute returns through a full cycle while having less volatility. We typically lag in more speculative-driven bull markets like the one seen over the past fiscal year.

WHAT FACTORS INFLUENCED PERFORMANCE

Inflation moderated during the period, and several central banks started cutting interest rates, leading to investor enthusiasm and rising equity markets across market caps and geographies. The small cap benchmarks are littered with money losing companies, but we are encouraged to see profitable small cap companies in the U.S. trade near their widest discount to large caps in over 40 years, aside from the 2000 technology bubble. The FMI Common Stock Fund trades at a meaningful discount to both benchmarks. The biggest driver of the Russell 2000® Index was the Finance sector, as Banks (Regional and Major) and Real Estate Investment Trusts bounced off lows from the 2023 regional banking crisis. The Fund was underweight in Finance, as many businesses in the sector do not fit our eye in terms of business quality and balance sheet strength. Conversely, the Fund's building products industry exposure was a sizeable tailwind to returns as negative sentiment around housing and commercial construction improved.
